New edacentrum Website is online!

[1]

Hannover, July 3, 2012 - From now on the edacentrum presents itself in a more modern, distinct and user-friendly way and appears in a new "look" and with new features and content. Members and project partners have their own access-controlled area with additional information and features. The access is possible here [2] at any time.

Visit the edacentrum in the Internet and learn all about the association, its members, the supervised projects and a lot of useful information in the EDA context. With this release of the website, a first milestone has been achieved. But the edacentrum is constantly expanding the site, and will assist with the latest information from EDA to the applications.
